Judge's Action Brings Nation Buries Racial Outcry In Senate Military Hopor Hero With Full

Democrats warned of "inflaming heated feelings" and possible racial conflicts as the Senate Tuesday called for an investigation of Recorder's Court Judge George Crockett's handling of arraignments in the weekend shooting death of a Detroit policeman.

"The racist approach of this Senate forbodes bad for our future," said Sen. Coleman Young, D-Detroit, a Negro.

"The unusual action of this body to lynch the black judge will be understood in the black community." he said.

"This is not a resolution to condemn Judge Crockett," maintained Sen. Robert Richardson, R-Saginaw, chief sponsor of the measure urging the newly established Judicial Tenure Commission to take up the Crockett case.

"The minimum that can be done is to go on record as urging that adequate and proper facilities be provided to meet present and future needs of our community," he said in an examination of the city's preparedness to control fires.

The study of the city's read!ness to cope with major fires was prompted by the disastrous blaze in which three business buildings were gutted in the 600 block, Ludington St. The loss was estimated at upwards of $1 million.

Sky High Lumber

A reader suggests that we are editorially poor mouth about Upper Peninsula forest income (only 3 per cent on investment) when the lumber and plywood trade is booming and jacking up prices sky high. We must, it's suggested, oe bamboozling our readers because the two facts of marginal forest income and high forest product prices don't jibe.

We're talking about two different things here. Like lions and tigers, they don't mix. Upper Peninsula forest income is from small (pole size) trees for the most part which are marketed for pulpwood. The current boom is in lumber and plywood, which are made from bigger sawtimber size trees.

The nation's forest products industry is currently defensive about the soaring prices on lumber and plywood. It explains that for the past 10 years - 1957-67, the industry faced problems of overproduction and the result was stable pricing patterns for wood products.

But in 1968 there was more export of American sawlogs and veneer logs to foreign processors and there was a great resurgence in demand for house building and the use of softwood lumber and plywood rose to record volumes in the United States. The prices went up to record highs, too, because the demand exceeded the supply.

Who's to blame? The private forest industry points out that industry's woodlands contain only 17 per cent of the nation's softwood sawtimber, while 60 per cent is in federal ownership and another 23 per cent in state ownerships and several million small private holdings.

It's being proposed that Congress make more money available to the U.S. Forest Service sc it can build access roads and perform other chores that will make more of this federal sawtimber available to the lumber hungry home building program.

It seems likely that this will be done, but it will have no expected effect in the Upper Peninsula's two federal forests, the Ottawa in the west and the Hiawatha in the east. The Hiawatha has never reached its "allowable cut," meaning that there has never been a harvest of all the timber in the forest which is mature and available for cutting. This is also substantially true of the Ottawa, which is somewhat more mature than the Hiawatha.

These forests do not have large volumes of of liberation lies in man's cature sawtimber which could be put on the pacity to suffer. market if there were access roads, as is true of some of the more mature federal forests in the western U. S.

But the national shortage of sawtimber has a lesson in it for our two U. P. federal forests. Both need more funds for timber stand improvement than they are getting. The Hiawatha has 50,000 to 60,000 acres of young hardwoods that need thinning if they're to grow into mature forests of high quality.

The U. S. Forest Service in its Timber Resources Review of several years ago predicted the shortage of timber which is now evident and some industry spokesmen pooh-poohed the warning. Here's another warning that the future will demand quality sawtimber which should be improved now in its growth stage.

The present allowable cut of sawtimber on the Hiawatha Forest with its more than 800,000 acres is only 6 million board feet yearly, a small amount for such a large forest area. The reason is that the forest is young. But 30 years hence in the year 2000 the allowable cut of sawtimber in this forest will have been increased an amazing 1300 per cent to 84 million board feet yearly. Of this, 30 million feet will-be in hardwoods and 50 million feet in softwoods.

The forest's plantations will be mature and harvestable and all the forest will reflect the quality built into it at this time with stand improvement practices. So the current lumber boom has a lesson for the Upper Peninsula's federal forests, even though they cannot immediately respond to its needs in a big way.

Hope

An aura of hope prevades the American Cancer Society program. No claims of miraculous cancer cures are being made - or even predictted. But there is a distinct feeling that the battle against the dread disease is slowly and surely

The reason for this hopeful feeling can be found in many areas. Last year, for example, the number of Americans alive and cured of cancer had grown to 1,500,000, a hundred thousand higher than the year before. To be considered cured of most types of cancer, a person must have been free from all evidence of the disease for five years after treatment.

Discoveries of new drugs have helped in the fight against leukemia, cancer of the bloodforming tissues. These new drugs, together with more efficient utilization of earlier drugs, plus more specific techniques have helped a number of leukemia patients live beyond five years. This progress has convinced some scientists that a cure for leukemia may be found sooner than for many other types of cancer. Other life-saving factors, the Cancer Soeiety notes, are the increasing awareness by women of the value of the annual Pap test for uterine cancer and the slow but steady recognition by the public of the need for regular physical checkups. These are but a few of the hopeful factors today which surround the whole subject of cancer. Yet, the battle still has a long way to go. Research must be intensified and carefully channeled, but there's a glimmer of light on the horizon. We strongly recommend the American Can- taken a position as a member ear Society's 1969 theme: Help yourself with a of the Gladstone fire depart- easily in either no-trump, spades

New Breed Challenges Church

By DAVID POLING

The new layman and his growing breed are those who quickly set their face against the church when it stops caring, stifles life, thwarts love and perverts justice. To be true to the Kingdom, he is willing, painfully, to be the church's most virulent opponent and unceasing critic. To be a layman loyal to Jesus Christ is to tell it like it is. Holiness is creation. Righteousness is seeking God's handiwork. Discipleship is fulfilling one's greatest gifts to the glory of God, and working for the advancement of all men whom He has lovingly created. But love and justice have no obedience to the church. For the church was called to be their

The style and shape of the naw laity is hard to chart, How do we know what it will be like, since so much of the time requires a nerve and tenacity to improvise? It is one thing to say what shouldn't happen, but what about some suggestions for action?

Liberation We are helped by the past. In tracing the development of the biblical idea of God. Erich Fromm finds the essence of true religion to be the liberation of man. Not restriction or bind, but a development that enables him to acquire convictions and principles, and thus to be eventually "true to himself," rather than to be obedient to an authority.

If men are to be free and fulfill the image desired by God, they must challenge, confront, criticize all forms of human authority. Otherwise, Fromm sees only a serfdom, not salvation for men. The biblical idea of devotion to God and radical freedom are the survival tools that the new laity must seize if they are to be their own men.

Capacity To Suffer And then Fromm puts his finger on the nerve when he concludes that the beginning experienced it in Egyptian slavery in Babylonian captivity, in a longing and vearning to find the highest and fullest that God has promised. The Christian sees in the suffering of Christ a willingness to use even death on a Cross to fulfill the claims and call of God on all men, In suffering, conviction is formed, belief is shaped, and life given a dimension that separates the trivia from the truth.

Helped By Past

Any person who sincerely pursues the Christian life must expect that it holds the landmarks and detours of suffering. Far too often this has been a ghastly thought for the church to consider. When it is bent on saving its own soul, lands. power, prestige, influence, and skin, it has little yearning for new Calvaries or another testing by fire. And it is possible to surround so thoroughly the life of believers with religious activities, planned pietism, calendared holidays, unbelievable financial burdens that the moral question need hardly be raised. Who has time to hear

We are helped by the past because the experience of the saints and seers of the Bible is also confirmed in the lonely adventures of men and women who believed and followed. In the last century we have some fascinating studies of the new laity who never apologized for their deviation from the norm, yet pursued it with good humor and frightening

Win At Bridge

by Jacoby & Son

Most bridge players suffer from the no-trump complex. In its mildest form the sufferer feels that he can play no-trump contracts a trifle better than his partner. In its most virulent form the victim feels that he has been divinely appointed to play all no-trump contracts and that he should bid no-trump at the first opportunity to prevent his partner from getting there

Five or 10 years later any really good pair would get there. South would bid one spade instead of two no-trump. North might jump in spades or he might even cue bid in hearts. Either way North and South would get to either six spades or six no-trump

Today any fair pair would get to the slam. The combination of a fit in two suits plus 29 highcard points including three aces and four kings would be good enough

Some modern scientists would get to slam somewhat differently. South would make a negative double over the one heart overcall. This modern gadget shows at least seven points, including four spades and is for take-out. North would like his hand and proceed to either cue bid hearts or jump

Of course, a modern East might not overcall with his jack-high suit, but in that case South would still respond one spade and get to the slam.

"GAME OF CHANCE"

"Fifty cents per shot," said the sign at a certain golf course. "If you score a holein-one, you win $5,000."

Sure enough, a golfer eventually did come through with a hole-in-one. But the proprietor refused to pay the prize money. Haled into court, he argued that the contest was a "game of chance"-hence, not enforceable by law.

However, the judge disagreed. Ordering the money paid, the judge said there was simply too much skill involved in a golf shot to classify this as a game of chance. In varying degree, gambling is regulated in every state. Often, under these regulations, it becomes necessary for a court to decide what is meant by the phrase "game of chance."

Sometimes the answer is relatively easy. Thus, the throwing of dice has consistently been held a game of chance. So has roulette. So has matching

On the other hand, chess and checkers and spelling bees have all been held not games of chance but games of skill.

What about bridge? Most courts have classified bridge, too, as a game of skill.

'Although there is of course an element of chance resulting from the deal of the cards,' explained one judge, "there is a continually recuring necessity in the bidding and play to make decisions which will ordinarily be determinative of the outcome."

Does it "take the curse off" a forbidden game of chance if the stakes are very small? As a matter of principle, no. Con-

Is it perfectly all right for a boy, age 15, to bring his 14year-old girl friend home after school and take her immediately to his bedroom and close the door-not to be seen or heard from until dinnertime, three hours later?

After dinner they go right back to the bedroom and close the door again. I say if it is studying that keeps them so busily occupied, they can do that in the den or the sun parlor. My husband says to keep quiet and not give them any ideas. What do you say?-

Dear Roch: I doubt that anyone could give those two any ideas they don't already have. And now I'll answer your question by asking one-of your husband. If you had a 14year-old daughter, Sir, would you approve of her being closeted with a 15-year-old boyin his bedroom, with the door closed, for three hours? I strongly suspect somebody is getting a few vacarious kicks imagining what goes on behind that closed door. Get those kids out of the bedroom and into the living room at * * *

Declare Drugs Ineffective

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Food and Drug Administration has accepted recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences Research Council that 78 antibiotic combination products are inneffective.

In declaring the products ineffective Tuesday, the FDA gave the 21 manufacturers 30 days to show why the products should not be withdrawn from sale.

The FDA found the 78 products were "ineffective as fixed combinations for claims made in their labeling."

Dr. Herbert L. Ley Jr., food and drug commissioner, emphasized the action "does not necessarily mean that either the antibiotics or other active ingredients are ineffective when used

But, he added, "the use of two or more active ingredients in the treatment of a patient who can be cured by one is irrational therapy. It exposes a patient to an unnecessary risk.'

Muskrat Fortunate In Having Lots Of Enemies

By LEE SMITS

Grand Rapids, the Sault. Fur is on highways." still an important Michigan no longer a sinewy half-breed, goes up and down, year after mouth."

As in the old days, it is the fur-buyer, the fur-trader, who compensates the trapper for his toil and hardship. Fur-buying requires more expertise than making a trail set for wolf. A trapper's total catch may include no more than 10 per cent of the highest grade pelts but those are the pelts that the manufacturers of fur garments are most eager to buy. The fur buyer learns to grade fur with the skill of an old shell-game the skill of an old shell ol a batch of fur depends largely on the choice items.
